Each Defendant has paying customers who are residents of the State of Texas and the Eastern District of Texas and who each use respective Defendant's products and services in the State of Texas and in the Eastern District of Texas.

COUNT I
INFRINGEMENT OF U.S. PATENT NO. 5,490,216

27. The '216 Patent was duly and legally issued by the United States Patent and Trademark Office on February 6, 1996 after full and fair examination. A true and correct copy of the '216 Patent is attached as Exhibit A. Uniloc is the owner of all rights, title, and interest in and to the '216 Patent.

28. Plaintiff Uniloc USA, Inc. has marked its products with the '216 Patent pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 287.

29. Upon information and belief, Defendant Foxit Corporation has been and now is infringing '216 Patent in the State of Texas, in this judicial district, and elsewhere in the United States by making, using, importing, selling or offering to sell software products that utilize a method and/or system of activating such software products, allowing the software to run in a unrestricted use mode on a computer platform only when an appropriate licensing procedure has been followed. Upon information and belief, one or more Foxit Corporation products including, but not limited to the Foxit Phantom PDF Suite product, use a registration system generating a security key from information input to the software which uniquely identifies an intended registered user of the software on a computer on which the software is to be installed. The registration system is replicated at a registration authority for the purpose of verifying whether the information unique to the user is correctly entered at the time that the security key is generated by the registration system. Defendant Foxit Corporation is thus liable for infringement of the '216 Patent pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 271.

30. Upon information and belief, Defendants Sage Software, Inc., Sage Software North America, and Sage Software Holdings, Inc. have been and now are infringing the '216 Patent in the State of Texas, in this judicial district, and elsewhere in the United States by making, using, importing, selling or offering to sell software products that utilize a method and/or system of activating such software products, allowing the software to run in a unrestricted use mode on a computer platform only when an appropriate licensing procedure has been followed. Upon information and belief, one or more Sage Software, Inc., Sage Software North America, and Sage Software Holdings, Inc. products including, but not limited to the Sage Peachtree First Accounting 2011 product, use a registration system generating a security key from information input to the software which uniquely identifies an intended registered user of the software on a computer on which the software is to be installed. The registration system is replicated at a registration authority for the purpose of verifying whether the information unique to the user is correctly entered at the time that the security key is generated by the registration system. Defendants Sage Software, Inc., Sage Software North America, and Sage Software Holdings, Inc. are thus liable for infringement of the '216 Patent pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 271.

31. Upon information and belief, Defendant Magix Computer Products International Co. has been and now is infringing the '216 Patent in the State of Texas, in this judicial district, and elsewhere in the United States by making, using, importing, selling or offering to sell software products that utilize a method and/or system of activating such software products, allowing the software to run in a unrestricted use mode on a computer platform only when an appropriate licensing procedure has been followed. Upon information and belief, one or more Magix Computer Products International Co. products including, but not limited to the Movie Edit Pro 17 Plus product, use a registration system generating a security key from information input to the software which uniquely identifies an intended registered user of the software on a computer on which the software is to be installed. The registration system is replicated at a registration authority for the purpose of verifying whether the information unique to the user is correctly entered at the time that the security key is generated by the registration system. Defendant Magix Computer Products International Co. is thus liable for infringement of the '216 Patent pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 271.

32. Upon information and belief, Defendant ScriptLogic Corporation has been and now are infringing the '216 Patent in the State of Texas, in this judicial district, and elsewhere in the United States by making, using, importing, selling or offering to sell software products that utilize a method and/or system of activating such software products, allowing the software to run in a unrestricted use mode on a computer platform only when an appropriate licensing procedure has been followed. Upon information and belief, one or more ScriptLogic Corporation products including, but not limited to the PacketTrap IT product, use a registration system generating a security key from information input to the software which uniquely identifies an intended registered user of the software on a computer on which the software is to be installed. The registration system is replicated at a registration authority for the purpose of verifying whether the information unique to the user is correctly entered at the time that the security key is generated by the registration system. Defendant ScriptLogic Corporation is thus liable for infringement of the '216 Patent pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 271.

33. Upon information and belief, Defendant Data Access Corporation has been and now are infringing the '216 Patent in the State of Texas, in this judicial district, and elsewhere in the United States by making, using, importing, selling or offering to sell software products that utilize a method and/or system of activating such software products, allowing the software to run in a unrestricted use mode on a computer platform only when an appropriate licensing procedure has been followed. Upon information and belief, one or more Data Access Corporation products including, but not limited to the Visual DataFlex product, use a registration system generating a security key from information input to the software which uniquely identifies an intended registered user of the software on a computer on which the software is to be installed. The registration system is replicated at a registration authority for the purpose of verifying whether the information unique to the user is correctly entered at the time that the security key is generated by the registration system. Defendant Data Access Corporation is thus liable for infringement of the '216 Patent pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 271.

34. Upon information and belief, Defendant Final Draft, Inc. has been and now is infringing the '216 Patent in the State of Texas, in this judicial district, and elsewhere in the United States by making, using, importing, selling or offering to sell software products that utilize a method and/or system of activating such software products, allowing the software to run in a unrestricted use mode on a computer platform only when an appropriate licensing procedure has been followed. Upon information and belief, one or more Final Draft, Inc. products including, but not limited to the Final Draft v8 product, use a registration system generating a security key from information input to the software which uniquely identifies an intended registered user of the software on a computer on which the software is to be installed. The registration system is replicated at a registration authority for the purpose of verifying whether the information unique to the user is correctly entered at the time that the security key is generated by the registration system. Defendant Final Draft, Inc. is thus liable for infringement of the '216 Patent pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 271.

35. Upon information and belief, Defendants GEAR Software, Inc. and GEAR Software Holdings, Inc. have been and now are infringing the '216 Patent in the State of Texas, in this judicial district, and elsewhere in the United States by making, using, importing, selling or offering to sell software products that utilize a method and/or system of activating such software products, allowing the software to run in a unrestricted use mode on a computer platform only when an appropriate licensing procedure has been followed. Upon information and belief, one or more GEAR Software, Inc. and GEAR Software Holdings, Inc. products including, but not limited to the GEAR DVD 7 product, use a registration system generating a security key from information input to the software which uniquely identifies an intended registered user of the software on a computer on which the software is to be installed. The registration system is replicated at a registration authority for the purpose of verifying whether the information unique to the user is correctly entered at the time that the security key is generated by the registration system. Defendants GEAR Software, Inc. and GEAR Software Holdings, Inc. are thus liable for infringement of the '216 Patent pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 271.

36. Upon information and belief, Defendant Tableau Software, Inc. has been and now is infringing the '216 Patent in the State of Texas, in this judicial district, and elsewhere in the United States by making, using, importing, selling or offering to sell software products that utilize a method and/or system of activating such software products, allowing the software to run in a unrestricted use mode on a computer platform only when an appropriate licensing procedure has been followed. Upon information and belief, one or more Tableau Software, Inc. products including, but not limited to the Tableau Server product, use a registration system generating a security key from information input to the software which uniquely identifies an intended registered user of the software on a computer on which the software is to be installed. The registration system is replicated at a registration authority for the purpose of verifying whether the information unique to the user is correctly entered at the time that the security key is generated by the registration system. Defendant Tableau Software, Inc. is thus liable for infringement of the '216 Patent pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 271.

37. Upon information and belief, Defendant Quinstar Corporation has been and now is infringing '216 Patent in the State of Texas, in this judicial district, and elsewhere in the United States by making, using, importing, selling or offering to sell software products that utilize a method and/or system of activating such software products, allowing the software to run in a unrestricted use mode on a computer platform only when an appropriate licensing procedure has been followed. Upon information and belief, one or more Quinstar Corporation products including, but not limited to the WIN-911 Basic product, use a registration system generating a security key from information input to the software which uniquely identifies an intended registered user of the software on a computer on which the software is to be installed. The registration system is replicated at a registration authority for the purpose of verifying whether the information unique to the user is correctly entered at the time that the security key is generated by the registration system. Defendant Quinstar Corporation is thus liable for infringement of the '216 Patent pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 271.

38. Upon information and belief, Defendant Transmagic, Inc. has been and now is infringing '216 Patent in the State of Texas, in this judicial district, and elsewhere in the United States by making, using, importing, selling or offering to sell software products that utilize a

Upon information and belief, one or more

Simtech Software, Inc. products including, but not limited to the MindMapper 2009 Standard product, use a registration system generating a security key from information input to the software which uniquely identifies an intended registered user of the software on a computer on which the software is to be installed. The registration system is replicated at a registration authority for the purpose of verifying whether the information unique to the user is correctly entered at the time that the security key is generated by the registration system. Defendant Simtech Software, Inc. (d/b/a SimTech Systems, Inc.) is thus liable for infringement of the '216 Patent pursuant to 35 U.S.C. § 271.

44. To the extent that facts learned in discovery show that Defendants' infringement of the '216 Patent is or has been willful, Uniloc reserves the right to request such a finding at time of trial.

45. As a result of these Defendants' infringement of the '216 Patent, Uniloc has suffered monetary damages in an amount not yet determined, and will continue to suffer damages in the future unless Defendants' infringing activities are enjoined by this Court.

46. Unless a permanent injunction is issued enjoining these Defendants and their agents, servants, employees, representatives, affiliates, and all others acting on in active concert therewith from infringing the '216 Patent, Uniloc will be greatly and irreparably harmed.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE, Uniloc respectfully requests that this Court enter:

1. A judgment in favor of Uniloc that Defendants have infringed the '216 Patent, and that such infringement was willful;

2. A permanent injunction enjoining Defendants and their officers, directors, agents, servants, affiliates, employees, divisions, branches, subsidiaries, parents, and all others acting in active concert therewith from infringing the '216 Patent;

3. A judgment and order requiring Defendants to pay Uniloc its damages, costs, expenses, and prejudgment and post-judgment interest for Defendants' infringement of the '216 Patent as provided under 35 U.S.C. § 284;

4. An award to Uniloc for enhanced damages resulting from the knowing, deliberate, and willful nature of Defendants' prohibited conduct with notice being made at least as early as the date of the filing of this Complaint, as provided under 35 U.S.C. § 284;

5. A judgment and order finding that this is an exceptional case within the meaning of 35 U.S.C. § 285 and awarding to Uniloc its reasonable attorneys' fees; and

6. Any and all other relief to which Uniloc may show itself to be entitled.

DEMAND FOR JURY TRIAL

Uniloc, under Rule 38 of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure, requests a trial by jury of any issues so triable by right.
